

THEATRICAL COMBINE PLANS TO BUILD THEATRES IN THE VALLEY

National Theatres Corporation Proposes to Operate String of Up-To-Date Playhouses

CHARLEROI TO GET ONE

$30,000 To Be Expended Here in Erecting New Structure--Monessen Opera House to be Leased

For the purpose of leasing or building and operating a number of theatres in Pittsburgh and towns along the Monongahela valley a corporation to be known as the National Theatres Corporation has been formed and a charter has been asked for in this State. The object of the company is to operate high-class theatres in Pittsburgh, Charleroi, Monongahela, and Monessen. All theatres to be built or purchased are to be large enough to enable them to handle without inconvenience first-class road productions.

The capitalization will be $50,000 divided into shares of $10 each. Edwin DeLonge and Co. of Chicago, Ill., dealers in bonds, is backing the project and their plan is to issue bonds for the purchase or erection of the proposed string of theatres.

It is a part of the plan to build a new theatre at Charleroi, costing $30,000, and to take the best operating theatre in Monessen, $35,000 to be devoted to this purpose. A new playhouse is also projected at Monongahela, similar to that planned for Charleroi, but costing $35,000.

In the "Investors' News," published by Edwin DeLonge and Co., the following statement is made relative to the proposition: "The offices and directors are men with honest reputations and who are well thought of in their home communities. The management will be left to able and experienced people. We hope to secure the services of the present successful manager of the theatre at Monessen. Enough money to insure the successful completion of the present plans has been subscribed according to present arrangements."

The National Theatres Corporation is now arranging for the opening of a Pittsburgh office, from which the local business will be handled. Details about the local proposed playhouse are wanting, but it is understood it will be placed in a good location. The capitalization may be increased later.

HOW THE VOTE WENT IN LAWRENCE COUNTY

The official vote of Lawrence county gives Tener 2,365, Grim 243, Berry 3,927. For Congress in the Twenty-fourth Congressional district, Mathews, Republican, who is elected received 3,467 votes and Wilson, Democrat, 2,348 in Lawrence county.

LATEST COUNT SHOWS ANDERSON TO BE THE LOSER BY 91 VOTES

After conceding the election of his Democratic-Keystone opponent, J. Carter Judson, A. H. Anderson, Republican candidate for Senator in the Washington-Greene district, had his hopes raised by the announcement that a recount made him a winner by 66 votes. The first count showed Anderson to be defeated by 61 votes. This report was circulated among the latter's friends and was received with much rejoicing.

It was an unofficial recount that caused the statement to be circulated that Anderson had been finally elected, as it was believed that several errors discovered made him the winner. The official count of both counties was in progress, and when this was completed the returns showed that Judson was a winner by 91 votes.

The news of the official count was received here about 3 o'clock. Anderson carried Washington county, while Judson's plurality in Greene was sufficient to overcome Anderson's lead at home.

ALUMNI ASSOCIATION HOLDS ANNUAL BANQUET

PROGRAM IS RENDERED

Class of 1910 Welcomed Into Fold by President of Association

The Douglas College Alumni Association held their third annual alumni banquet last night at the Monier Hotel. The affair was one of the most pleasing events of the kind ever held by the association and was attended by a representative number from Charleroi and other towns all along the valley.

In connection with the banquet a program of literary and musical numbers was rendered by members of the association and the faculty. An address of welcome to the class of 1910 was given by the president of the association, J. Russell Carroll, of McKeesport. Miss May Barth rendered a piano solo for which she was repeatedly encored and was followed by Miss Minnie Mears of Monongahela who gave a reading. President Warren T. Douglas of the college gave a talk and Miss Mildred Stout of Elrama followed with a recitation. M. Adams, the superintendent of the Charleroi school spoke of school experiences after which Miss Eva Louttit of Riverview read a prophecy for the class of 1910 and set ideals which if even near approached will make the class a memorable one. At the banquet table Mr. Adams was toastmaster and several responded to toasts.

Reception for Couple

Mrs. C. B. Copeland and daughter Miss Jessie were in Belle Vernon last night attending a reception given in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Charles McKean, a recently wedded couple at their new home. The affair was arranged by the Belle Vernon friends of Mr. and Mrs. McKean and a large number were present.

NO TRACE OF STOLEN HORSE

No trace has been found of either the horse and buggy missing from Roley's livery barn here or M. C. Greenlee, the young man who on Sunday disappeared with the equipment. The search for both is being continued and today Joseph Roley of Belle Vernon is in Allegheny county looking up a clue. It is thought possible that Greenlee may have sold the horse and buggy and skipped the country.

OFFICIALS OF SCHOOL WILL MEET

The first annual conferences of colleges secondary, and high schools of Western Pennsylvania will be held Thursday and Friday, December 2 and 3, at the University of Pittsburgh, Grant Boulevard, Pittsburgh, under the auspices of that institution. Its purpose will be the fostering of increased interest in higher education among the secondary and high schools and for bringing about a closer relationship between the two great branches of our educational system. Afternoon and evening sessions will be held on the two days of the gathering and topics of general interest in the field of education discussed.

Invitations have been sent to ten colleges, five Normal schools, and all the high schools west of the Allegheny mountains to have representatives at the conference and prominent educators from 21 counties of the Keystone State are expected to attend. Included in the proposed list of speakers are the names to Presidents Moffitt of W. and J. college; Crawford of Allegheny college and Russell of Westminster college.

SUCCUMBS AFTER MUCH SUFFERING

Mrs. Helen O'Donnell, 45 years old, after extended sufferings, died at her home, 926 McKean avenue, last evening at 6:10 o'clock. The funeral will be held from the late home on Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock and interment will be in the Monongahela cemetery. Two daughters, Misses Grace and Margaret, and one son, William, survive. Mrs. O'Donnell was the widow of the late William O'Donnell who died in 1906. One son John died in 1908.

PETTY METHODS OF ACHESON AND VAN VALKENBERG WERE RESPONSIBLE

TENER'S PLURALITY OVER BERRY AT THE LOWEST IS 33,000

The plurality with which John K. Tener, Republican, beat William H. Berry, the Keystone candidate for Governor, will be at least 33,700. It was increased to this figure by other official and unofficial returns that came in yesterday, allowing for the reduction which missing Chester and Wayne counties are expected to cause. Complete returns from 65 out of 67 the counties gave Tener a plurality of 33,701. Chester and Wayne counties will reduce that by 2,000 to 3,000. Deducting the larger 3,000 from the 36,701. Tener's plurality is found to be 33,701. This is the total vote, with the two counties missing: Tener, 405,861; Berry, 369,160; Grim, 124,487; Larkin, 11,201; Slayton, 22,252.

The Tener plurality in Allegheny county was increased by additional official returns that came in. These returns show that Tener received, with only a few scattering districts to hear from 47,641 votes, Berry receiving 38,435, giving Tener a plurality of 9,206.

Deep Laid Plot to Gain Control Defeated by Venom of Erstwhile Politicians

MADE SERIOUS MISTAKES

Energy Directed in the Wrong Direction to Bring About the Most Desired Results Politically

After the smoke and fire of the campaign and election have cleared away, some interesting facts and incidents are beginning to filter out. One of these is that a deep laid plot had been hatched among the organizers of the Keystone party by which the political control was to have been taken over by the bosses and would-be politicians, while the reformers were to get the glory, in case the Keystone party was victorious. By taking advantage of the political unrest and general insurgency of the people, and by catering to the disaffected and fanning the flames of discontent wherever possible, it was believed that the psychological moment was on hand for the success of the movement. But for some serious mistakes and short sightedness on the part of the politicians behind the movement, the plans might have carried out.

One of the most serious of these mistakes, perhaps, was the venomous slanderous attacks upon the personal character and integrity of John K. Tener, the Republican candidate for Governor. This detracted public attention from the spirit of insurgency, which was really the strongest issue the opposition to the Republican party had, and which caused such sweeping Democratic victories elsewhere throughout the country. This was the real cause of the Democratic landslide, but its effects were mitigated in Pennsylvania by the scandalous and unjust attacks upon Mr. Tener, which the opposition pushed to the front instead of fanning the flames of insurgency.

Another serious handicap to the success of the Keystone movement was the activity of E. F. Acheson. The fact that both he and Mr. Tener were from the same county, and that Mr. Acheson's motives were inspired by revenge and personal animus instead of reform, together with the opposition he aroused against himself and his movement in Charleroi, completely offset any benefit from his efforts. In his eagerness to pay off some personal political debts—notably against assemblyman Chas. A. Bentley, and the Congressional and Senatorial candidates, in order to get back at

CLAIMS HEAVY DAMAGES BY REASON OF ACCIDENT

MONONGAHELA BOY DIES IN PHILADELPHIA

Word was received by Negley Anderson at Monongahela yesterday of the death of Charles Clonar, a former Monongahelian, at Philadelphia. The information came from the acting coroner and contained no details of the death. The young man was about 22 years old. He has been absent for some time, his family not having heard from him for some weeks. The body has been sent for and will likely arrive today.

GOOD ORCHESTRAS ENGAGED TO APPEAR

No announcement made to the music lovers of Pittsburgh and surrounding towns in recent years has been more favorable received, or met with such hearty co-operation from the general public as the forthcoming series of orchestral concerts under the auspices and management of the Pittsburgh Orchestra Association, whose aim it is to complete the necessary endowment fund by mid-winter for the founding of a great, permanent orchestra comparable to the best of American orchestras. To bridge over the interim and enable the public to decide for itself the kind of orchestra and conductor it wants, the Association is presenting a series of Four Visiting Orchestra Concerts, comprising the greatest orchestras in the country, each with a personnel of eighty or more players.

The four appearances of these world-famous orchestras will be at the new Soldiers' Memorial Hall, Pittsburgh. The first will be given by the New York Philharmonic Orchestra, Gustav Mahler, conductor on Monday evening, December 5th; the second by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Max Fiedler, conductor, on January 30th; the third and fourth by the Thomas Orchestra of Chicago, Frederick Stock, conductor, on February 21 and March 27th. These concerts will surpass in importance and educational value any single orchestra offering ever before presented in Pittsburgh, and at the popular schedule price of season tickets, ranging from $7.50 to as low as $2.50 for the entire series, it is reasonably sure that the capacity of the Hall will be taxed by season subscribers alone making it improbable that any seats will be left for any single concert. Season ticket buyer have the advantage of choice of location for the four concerts, and a saving in price. Prospectus and all information will be given on application at the Orchestra Association Offices 15, 16, 17 Farmers Bank Building, Pittsburgh. Orders received by mail given careful attention.

Statement Filed by Miss Matheny in Case.

CROSSING FATALITY ECHO

One of Six Suits Instituted as Result of Speers Tragedy.

The statement of claim has been filed in the suit of Miss Blanche Matheny, of McKeesport by her father and next friend, George Matheny and George Matheny in his own right against the Pittsburgh Railways Co. The claim is for $50,000 damages for personal injuries.

This is one of six suits that have been instituted against the railways company as a result of the accident at the Beechwood crossing in Speers borough on June 26, 1910. It was in this accident that W. H. Hamilton, of Roscoe, and his son, Leroy Hamilton, were killed and other members of the family so seriously injured.

Miss Matheny was a guest of the Hamiltons and was with them in the auto when struck by the car. She says that she has been permanently injured and deprived of the ability to again secure the large earnings that she did before the accident. In the accident she had an arm crushed, the bone broken and splintered and that she was otherwise cut and bruised. The father, George Matheny, avers he has expended large sums for medical services for his daughter and will be deprived of her earnings for a long time and will be put to great expense in the future in providing medical aid and other care.

Plus Was Lacking
The statement that the deposed and would-be political leaders who engineered the Keystone movement in the State were inspired solely by the political opportunities the movement offered rather than by motives of reform, bears the earmarks of truth.
Founded almost upon a forlorn hope
at the start, the only issue then upon which to base a hope was the political insurgency of the people and the spirit of social unrest and discontent. It was thought to be a psychological moment, but just to what extent, was of course, largely a matter of conjecture.

Instead of making their campaign on this issue, which was done by the opposition to the Republican party elsewhere throughout the country, the Keystone backers became too impatient for apparent results and sought to manufacture issues themselves instead of letting the people make them. By descending to the lowest depth of degradation in the assassination of personal character, the campaign managers of the Keystone party obscured the real issue, and aroused an opposition that otherwise would not have been so active.

It was a fatal mistake, and one that former Senator Flinn never would have made had he been in command instead of Acheson and Van Valkenberg.
Flinn wisely kept in the background and played his cards so that he could hedge when he saw the incompetency of the active leaders. These never possessed the real elements of leadership, and this lack of "plus," as Elbert Hubbard calls it, lost them
the battle at the psychological moment, which will hardly occur to them again.

Still Slandering
The Acheson newspapers still continue to insult the people of Charleroi by alleging glaring and flagrant frauds at the elections here Tuesday.
They tacitly urge Wilson, the Democratic Keystone candidate for Congress, to contest the seat of Charles Matthews, who was elected to Congress on the Republican ticket in the Twenty-fourth districts. Frauds in Charleroi and Donora, they claim, would be sufficient to unseat Mr.
Matthews.

Alleging the fear of frauds in Charleroi, the Acheson-Keystone leaders at the county sent had overseers appointed for the three Charleroi precincts. In addition to this the Keystone watchers were instructed to challenge every voter possible,
and this was carried to extremes in at least one precinct. No one interfered with the Keystone or other watchers, and yet with all this the Tener vote overwhelmed the Keystoners over three to one. Charleroi practices the new nationalism in getting the vote out. Instead of relying on heelsers, as Mr. Acheson always did, dozens of citizens interested in civic matters man the polls
and do more effective work than any of the professional ward workers.
There is no patent on this method.
If good Republicans had worked it elsewhere over the county the returns would have told a different tale.

ELECTRIC SPARKS
President Taft said he was not surprised at the results of election over the county. It's hard to surprise a fellow of his calm demeanor.

Where is the imbecile now who says that the straw vote is a true indicator of sentiment?
How does Acheson fancy being to blame for Tener's election as Governor? Yet such is partly the fact.

Everybody seems to have a cold.
Blame it on Penrose.
The New York World says "Hearst and Roosevelt—they were united in life, and in death they were not divided."

Senator Bradley of Kentucky somewhat resembles Governor-Elect J. K.
Tener. Senator Bradley should be congratulated.
Flopers will have more chance to escape in the future, through the coming of the aeroplanes.

Some women insist on being terribly determined. Here's one who was and she proceeded to do it.

Please, let's have a sane Christmas.

he takes his first ride in an airship.

PETTY METHODS
WERE TO BLAME
United States Senator George E. T.
Oliver, Mr. Acheson overstepped the grounds of prudence and missed the main chance.

The refusal of Berry to withdraw
with Grim in favor of a fusion candidate at the last moment, when such a move seemed to assure positive victory, is now apparent. It would have decidedly interfered with precedented plans. A new candidate, presumably a Democrat, would have made his administration along party
family the old politicians who had engineered the Keystone ideal. It is stated that Acheson was to have been appointed Secretary of the Commonwealth in case Berry was elected Governor. This position would have given him great power and opportunities for dictating and influencing legislation, to control political patronage and to pay off old political debts of gratitude galore. It was a glittering opportunity which promised success, and when it is shown that it might have been successful but for bad management, the reflection must be gall and wormwood to the promoters of the scheme.

Flinn of Pittsburgh and Van Valken-berg of Philadelphia were to have also benefitted by the deal, it is stated. The former had his eye on the United States Senatorship, while
the latter was after spoils, patronage
and political prestige in the State as leader to depose Senator Penrose. It was a well laid plot, but the narrow-mindedness of the leaders caused them to descend to petty methods for personal revenge, and the main chance was permitted to slip away from their grasp.

Miss Mildred Stout of Elrama was here last night to attend the Douglas College alumni banquet and was a guest of Miss Margaret Miller.

Tangle of Red Tape In an English Extradition Case.
GETTING AROUND THE LAW.

Only the Quick Wit of the Canadian Police Inspector Kept a Notorious Criminal In Custody When In Reality
He Was as Free as the Air.

The manner in which a prisoner extradited to England from a foreign country is treated while on the voyage home depends very much on the detective who has him in charge and also on whether or no there is any
violence either to himself or to others.

For instance, in the case of Jabez Balfour, who was taken to England all the way from Buenos Aires, there was a strong suspicion—probably ill founded—that he contemplated committing suicide. Consequently Inspector Frost, who had him in charge, decided to take no risks that he could possibly avoid.

The regulations do not permit of an unconvicted prisoner being handcuffed
on board ship once the vessel has left port, and he must be allowed one hour's exercise on deck each day.
These indulgences, if indulgences they may be called, were therefore not withheld from Balfour.

But he got few others. For twenty-three hours out of every twenty-four he was immured in a locked cabin. He was not permitted even to enter the public dining room, his meals being brought to him by Mr. Frost himself after the rest of the passengers had
fed. He was, besides, constantly watched and was subjected to a most rigorous search immediately on coming aboard.

His only relaxation was an occasional game of chess with some of the passengers, who kindly came to his cabin to play with him by permission
and in the presence of his keeper.
This sea imprisonment lasted exactly one month and a day, and Balfour afterward declared that it was the most trying experience of a captivity that was destined to continue for nearly twelve years.

One of the longest and in its later stages one of the pleasantest voyages
ever undertaken by an unconvicted criminal was that which Charles Hy-
ton Davidson, the notorious forger, made some years back in the custody of Chief Inspector Murray of the Canadian department of justice.

Murray tracked the wanted man to Mexico and secured his extradition to Canada. But then his difficulties began. He could not bring his prisoner to Canada by the direct route through the United States, for immediately Davidson set foot in that country he could have demanded to be released.
There was therefore nothing for it but
to convey him by way of Jamaica and England and thence back across the Atlantic to Quebec.

On the voyage Murray kept Davidson under close observation, although allowing him considerably more freedom than Frost allowed Balfour.
When, however, he had got safely as far as London he was both mortified and astonished at the likelihood of his having had all his trouble for nothing.
The law was, he was told, that a prisoner extradited from a foreign country to a British colony could not be kept in custody in England for longer than twenty-four hours, nor could he be taken as a prisoner on board a British ship sailing from a British port.

Here was a dilemma. Davidson was free as air—had he only known it.
But Murray was equal to the occasion.
"Look here, Davidson," he said, "I've got you safe. There is only the last stage of the journey to complete. If I allow you to travel saloon with me as an ordinary first class passenger will you give me your word to play
me no tricks?"

To this proposition Davidson, knowing nothing of the real state of affairs,
was naturally quite ready to agree.
And so it came to pass that one of the most notorious criminals Canada has ever known came home in state; free, yet not free, a voluntary prisoner, and yet an involuntary one.—Pearson's Weekly.

Tactful Truth.

fulness nobody doubts," said the outraged hostess, with a glitter in her

ply my boarders with bad butter?"
The others looked eager attention to see how Mr. Verity would get out of it.

OPERATION

Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Galena, Kans.—"A year ago last March I fell, and a few days after
there was soreness in my right side.
In a short time a bunch came and it bothered me so much at night I could not sleep. It kept growing larger and
by fall it was as large as a hen's egg.
I could not go to bed without a hot
water bottle applied
to that side. I had one of the best doctors in Kansas and
he told my husband
that I would have to be operated on as it
was something like
a tumor caused by a rupture. I wrote to you for advice and you told me not to get discouraged but to take Lydia
E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.
I did take it and soon the lump in my side broke and passed away."—Mrs.
R. R. HULEY, 713 Mineral Ave., Galena, Kans.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has proved to be the most successful remedy for curing the worst forms of female ills, including displacements, inflammation, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, and nervous prostration. It costs but a trifle to try it, and the result has been worth millions to many suffering women.

If you want special advice write for it to Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass.
free and always helpful.

THE PRESENT INSTANT.
Science Defines It as the Hundredth
Part of a Second.

A congress of European astronomers decided that the present time—that is,
the present moment at any particular instant—consists of the hundredth part of a second. This has been settled on because these men of science have found that it represented the tiniest fraction of time which could be appreciated by the human brain. Yet the thirtieth part of a second is actually used in physical science, especially in certain important uses of electricity.

For scientific purposes, however, the official present moment flashes from the future to the past in the hundredth part of a second. This cannot seem so remarkable when it is recalled that speed records for both horses and men runners are officially calculated in fractions as small as one-fifth of a second.

But in astronomy it is needed to have the hundredth part of a second,
for in that moment light can travel 2,000 miles. So time, which is, after all,
only a figure of speech and is a mystery that no human brain can understand or fathom, must be considered relatively to one's sensations. The time to pull an aching tooth is really much longer to the sufferer than a whole night spent in sound sleep. It is more of the person's actual life. It demands more food to stand the nervous strain and the pain than hours of quiet rest.

Time, then, for all men is relative to their personal sensations. Yet time is real enough. It takes actual time for starlight to travel, in some cases thousands of years. It takes time for sound to travel and time for the electric wave to work actual results over long distances.

So that time is not only theoretical;
it is as real as coal and wood. Yet this reality stretches over a human lifetime back to ages before the existence of the sun and the stars. For purposes of ordinary human work the second is small enough to use as a standard of value, but scientific men have progressed so far in knowledge that the second is too long a period for them to consider as the scientific instant.
Therefore they have chosen the hundredth of a second as the standard for the length of time that they will con-
instant.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Spoiled His Act.
A musical artist announced to his friends that he had a feature for his act that was calculated to make the whole profession sit up and take notice. Several days later he was asked to divulge his plans.

"Oh, that's all off," was the answer.
"Well, if it was such a wonderful thing what was it?" was the general inquiry.

"I had planned to have a real skeleton," the musical man replied, "with its ribs tuned up so that I could play music on it like a xylophone."
"Great! Why aren't you going to do it?"

The musician heaved a sigh of disappointment.
"I tried it," he answered, "but somebody stole me the skeleton of a ticklish man and I couldn't hit the ribs."—

An Uncompromising Enemy to Happiness and to Health.
It is a law that every state of mind,
whether good or bad, affects every cell in the system and is outpictured in the body, says Orison Sweet Marden in Success Magazine. We are thus the arbiters of our fate through our thoughts, emotions and passions.
The time will come when we shall know how to refresh ourselves by mental chemistry—that is, by holding
in our minds the antidotes of the things that have wearied us or vexed us, by holding the mental attitude which will neutralize the thought enemies that have thrown our bodies into confusion.
There is nothing so deadly to happiness as mental discord. It paralyzes the thinking ability and destroys the power of concentration and effectiveness.
All diseases and sickness of whatever kind are the outpicturing of some form of discord. If the mind is kept as happy as possible it is difficult for discord to get a foothold in the body.
A happy mind is the best possible health producer, disease killer and discord destroyer.
For centuries man's happiness was looked upon by many earnest, thinking people as a condition largely beyond his control. They seemed to think that it depended mostly upon the temperament one happened to develop and that there were other things of so much more importance that we should not consider it too seriously or take precious time to cultivate it directly.
We are beginning to find, however,
that even as an economical investment it pays immensely to make a business of being happy and being
just as good to ourselves as possible, although not in a selfish way. We could not be good to ourselves in the higher sense by being selfish.

An Anecdote of Pellegrin, an Eighteenth Century Bard.
The impetuous French poets of the middle eighteenth century used to consort at the cafes, where sometimes they would pick up customers. One of the worst and at the same time the most facile of the bards was Pellegrin, of whom a characteristic story is told in "An Eighteenth Century Marquise." One day a newcomer entered the cafe and began complaining that he was going to be married and had no epithalamium for his wedding. Pellegrin hastened to offer one of his own compositions. A deal was soon arranged, and the price agreed upon was 20 sous a verse. The poet disappeared.

A Sartorial Freak.
Food is "chow" in the east, meals are "tiffin," and an L. O. U. is a "chit." China and India making these additions to dietetic nomenclature.
The most shocking sartorial thing visible in the east is the dinner jacket of white duck affected by the British and, alas, by some expatriated Americans. It is cut very short, barely reaching the suspender buttons, and bares widely in front. High collar and black tie complete the abominable combination. Yet no Briton can eat his evening meal without being thus garbed. White duck "pants," of course, cover the unmentionables. The white suits of Mark Twain and Frank Vanderlip which once excited New York are outdone and quite as a matter of course, New York World.

Barratt Wendell's Pun.
When Professor Wendell of Harvard entered upon his Sabbatical year he remained in Cambridge some weeks after his leave of absence began and persisted in taking part in the department meeting. The head of the department protested.
"Sir," said he, "you are officially absent. You are non est."
"Oh, very well," replied Professor Wendell; "a non est man is the noblest
work of God."—Success Magazine.

A Matter of Choice.
An old ducky servant devoted to General Jackson waited on him in the general's last hours. Right after the general's death a preacher asked Rastus if he thought Jackson would go to heaven.
"I don't know, boss, ef 'ell go founsure, but he can ef he wants to," replied the ducky.—Independent.

The Gullible Public.
Two boulevardiers of Paris tell how they proved the gullibility of the public. They bet a friend 1,000 francs that by inserting three advertisements of three lines each in papers in the course of a week they would receive 500 francs without giving any explanation or making any promise to the readers.

On a Saturday the following advertisement appeared:

"Intelligent persons will send 5 francs to such an address."

On the Wednesday the insertion ran: "Last possible day is Sunday. Send your 5 francs then, or refusal."

The third on the following Saturday was:

"All 5 francs posted after tomorrow will be inexorably refused."

By the Sunday morning seventy-seven postal orders for 4 shillings each had come in, and the next morning eighty-two more arrived. The gullible public had sent in not 500 francs, but 795 francs in a week. Having proved their point and won their bet, the two boulevardiers naturally returned the postal orders to the ingenious senders.

English of Long Ago.
The king's English has changed as kings have come and gone, says the St. James' Gazette. Here is a passage from the record of a crowning of long ago: "The Cardinal, as Archbishop of Canterbury, showing the king to the people at the high parties of the said pulpit, shall say in this wise. 'Sirs, I here present Henry (true) and rightful, and undoubted inheritor by the lawes of God and man to the crowne and roiall dignite of England, with all things therunto annexed and apperteyning, electe, chosen and required by all three estates of the same land to tak ypon him the said crowne and roiall dignite, whereupon ye shall understand that the date is prefixed and appoynted by all the piers of this land for the consecration, ennobelment and coronacion of the said most excellent Prince Henry; will ye, sirs, at this tyme give your willes and essentes to the same consecration, ennobelment and coronacion? Whereupon the people shall saie, with a greute voice. 'Ye, Ye. So be hit. King Henry! King Henry!'"

Weighing the Mayor.
A mayor, particularly an English mayor, is traditionally a man of weight and substance, but there is only one municipality that insists that his honor get on the public scales and prove it. Of the thousands of quaint and curious customs surviving in "the old country" this is perhaps one of the most odd. The mayor of High Wycombe has to be weighed on Nov. 9 of each year, inauguration day, and this custom has been observed for about six centuries. The mayor elect walks at the head of a procession consisting of the councilors, the beadle and the mace bearer. He is clad in cocked hat, silk stockings, blue coat and knee breeches. Upon reaching the town hall the mayor is placed upon the scales by the head constable, and a record of his avoirdupois is solemnly made in a book kept for this purpose.—Harper's Weekly.

The Brain is Very Adaptable.
Each vocation makes a different call upon the brain and develops faculties and qualities peculiar to itself, so that as the various professions, trades and specialties multiply the brain takes on new adaptive qualities, thus giving greater variety and strength to civilization as a mass, says Orison Swett Marden in Success Magazine.

When the world was young the brain of man was very primitive, because the demand upon it was largely for self protection and the acquisition of food, which called only for the development of its lower, its animal part. As civilization advanced, however, there was a higher call upon the brain and a more varied development until today, in the highest civilization, it has become exceedingly complex.

Only Two Kinds.
Little Lawrence's grandfather was very ill, and a trained nurse had been employed to care for him. When he became convalescent a young woman who had studied in a hospital for a short time was secured in her place. A sympathetic neighbor meeting Lawrence, the following conversation took place:
"How is your dear grandpa this morning, Lawrence?"
"He is better."
"Have you the trained nurse still?"
"No; the trained nurse has gone away, and the one we have now is half trained and half wild."—Woman's Home Companion.

THE GIFT OF GAB.

Why Stephenson Thought There Was No Power Equal to It.

When George Stephenson was visiting the seat of Sir Robert Peel at Drayton on one occasion, says the writer of "Famous British Engineers," there happened to be present Dr. Buckland, the scientist, and Sir William Follett, the famous advocate. Stephenson discussed with Dr. Buckland one of his favorite theories as to the formation of coal and, though undoubtedly in the right, was ultimately vanquished by the arguments and oratory of the doctor, who was a better master of tongue fence than himself. Next morning while pondering over his defeat in the solitude of the garden he was accosted by Sir William Follett and confided to that gentleman the story of his failure.

Sir William, acquainted with the details of the matter in dispute, agreed to take up the case and soon afterward attacked Dr. Buckland on the subject. A long discussion ensued, in which the man of law completely silenced the man of science, who was at last compelled to own himself vanquished. Sir Robert Peel, highly amused at this example of "tit for tat," then turned to the inventor and inquired, with a laugh:

"And what do you say on this matter, Mr. Stephenson?"

"Why," he replied, "I will only say this—that of all the powers above and under the earth there seems to me no power equal to the gift of the gab."

QUAINT EPIGRAMS.

Gems From Ancient Graveyards in Suffolk, England.

The Suffolk (England) Institute of Archaeology has been collecting epitaphs from the ancient graveyards throughout the shire, and several of the most curious are here printed. One shows traces of a pessimistic philosophy surprising when we consider the strong orthodoxy of the day when the epitaph was written:

Beneath this stone lies Catherine Gray. Changed to a lifeless lump of clay. By earth and clay she got her self. And now she's turned to clay herself. Who knows but in the course of years In some tall pitcher or brown pan She in her shop may stand again.

Another from Suffolk reads as follows:

Here lies Robert Wallas, The King of Good Fellows, Clerk of All Hallows And maker of bellows.

These which follow could scarcely be lines chosen by the reverend occupant of the tomb himself, a clergyman named Chest:

Here lies at rest, I do protest, One Chest within another. The chest of wood was very good. Who says so of the other?

And, to conclude, here is a bit of philosophy that cannot be improved by any of the great thinkers of all time:

Here I lie outside the chance door; Here I lie because I'm poor. The further in the more they pay, But here I lie as warm as they.

A Wooden Head.

Certain members of the house party were describing the accidents that had happened to them during their various careers. Adventures by flood, fire and field had been well reasoned, and Dr. Stephen, eager for fame, thought it was his turn.

"Do you know," he said, "I had a very painful experience once. I ran a con found d splinter into my foot, an inch long right under my finger and, don't you know—"

"Really, Mr. Dr. Stephen," said a member of the party. "How did you do it?"

"Well," he said, "it happened like this." As he spoke he unconsciously raised his hand and scratched his forehead.

Carpets and Rugs.

Carpets and rugs were originally employed by oriental nations for sitting, reclining and kneeling purposes during devotion. When introduced among the western peoples they were for a long time used for purely ornamental purposes, covers for tables or couches and for laying before altars or chairs of state upon great occasions. Carpets were brought to Europe by the Moors, but it was well into the eighteenth century before they came into anything like general use.

Every Little Movement.

A visitor to the cobbler's shop noticed one day a barrel half full of tiny brass cogwheels.

"Goodness knows," answered the cobbler, with a careless laugh. "I get Charleront a cupful out of every clock I would be."—Philadelphia Bulletin.

Matthews.

Truly Answered.

Boats trading in the Medway in former years rejoiced in rather curious names, and the following was only one of the many amusing incidents resulting from this:

A boat named What's That to You? passing a lockyard at night-time was hailed as usual by the coast guardsman.

"Boat ahoy! Your captain's name?"

"Captain X."

"And what are you laden with?"

"Coals."

"Where bound for?"

"Chatham."

"Ship's name?"

"What's That to You?"

"I asked you the name of the ship."

"What's That to You?"

"You shall be reported for your insolence!" roared the coast guardsman. Again he put the question, and, receiving the same reply, the boat was commanded to remain where she was.

In the morning two boats were seen keeping guard. The official, as they boarded the vessel with full authority to seize the offenders, observed for the first time the name painted in large letters. Amid the laughter and jeers of the crew of the What's That to You? they pulled moodily away.—London Telegraph.

There were elements of picturesqueness and drama in the politics of the before the war time which are lacking nowadays. Marion Harland tells in her autobiography of a Whig rally which makes the political meetings of today seem tame, cut and dried affairs. It was in 1844, the year of Clay's defeat, and feeling ran high. At that particular time John Tyler was perhaps the most unpopular man in the Union. In the progress of his review of national affairs the orator at last came to the hated name. Instantly uprose the majestic figure of Captain Cook, the local eccentric, clad in the scarlet English hunting coat he invariably wore. "The Lord have mercy upon the nation!" he cried, his voice solemn with wrath and sonorous with the mint juleps for which the Bell was noted. "Fellow citizens, I always cry to high heaven for mercy upon this country when John Tyler's name is mentioned: Amen and amen!"

Distilled Gold.

The investigations of a French chemist show that gold in the electric furnace boils freely at a temperature of 2,000 degrees C. In two or three minutes it is said, from 100 to 150 grams of gold pass into the state of vapor. In condensing upon a cold body this golden vapor forms fliform masses and cubic crystals. At its temperature of ebullition gold dissolves a little carbon, which at the time of resolidification is deposited in the form of graphite. In an alloy of gold and copper, copper distills first. In an alloy of gold and tin, the tin distills more abundantly than the gold, and when a large quantity of these mixed vapors is taken the tin burns on contact with the oxygen of the air, forming oxide of tin, colored purple by a fine dust of condensed gold. This is one method of preparing the color known as "purple of Cassius."—Harper's Weekly.

Arctic Rock Weed.

Drifting down from Alaska comes the greatest of all sea plants, the arctic rock weed, that grows in shape like a huge ship's hanger and sometimes with branches 500 feet long. There are no signs of leaves, but at intervals of a fathom or so a knob, for all the world like the buoy on a drift net, grows around the stem, aiding, as does the buoy, in keeping the plant afloat and creating the impression that some nets have gone astray. —New York World.

Method In Her Breakage.

"Augusta is an awfully bright girl, isn't she?"

PLATFORM HUMOR

Were Not on the Bills.

BILL NYE'S TACTFUL QUERY.

It Saved an Embarrassing Situation
and Turned a Painful Silence Into a Burst of Laughter--A Simple Notice
That Made an Audience Roar.

The funniest humor is the unintentional kind. The best comedy is that which has never been rehearsed or premeditated, but springs to life in close straits when everything of success for the platform performer depends on his holding the spot light of his audience's attention through a cruel strain caused by unexpected diversion.

Some of the involuntary humor of
the platform is worth remembering and repeating. For instance:

Once upon a time a lecturer reached his date at 7:30. He had to get his super, shave and dress between then and the usual scheduled starting time, 8:15. Accordingly he dressed with more haste than he had intended, and two top buttons of his trousers failed to receive proper attention. This showed plainly in the glare of the footlights,
and a bit of his dress shirt protruded noticeably. The audience had a hard time being courteous and reconciling
the ridiculousness of the speaker's appearance with the serious dignity and beauty of his lecture. Still, all would have been well but for the fact that at the close of the address and while the speaker still sat on the platform in his unconscious dishabille the platform manager rose and announced impres-sively:

"The next number on this splendid course will be given two weeks from tonight by Dr. Robert McIntyre, who will deliver his celebrated lecture
'Buttoned Up People.'"

The audience shrieked, and to this day, through the tender hearted forbearance of those people, that lecturer does not know why the announcement of his confrere's beautiful word picture lecture created just that kind of enthusiasm.

At one time Dr. Thomas E. Green was submitted to the long introduction agony. He stood it as patiently as possible, and so did the audience, but when the introducer ceased and bowed out the paid speaker of the evening Dr. Green walked forward and said in his most ministerial tone:

"I am going to add a phrase to the litany, making it read as follows:
'From our traducers and our introducers good Lord deliver us!'"

Sometimes a town committee is cantankerous and takes on a degree of choiciness never dreamed of or aspiring to by a city committee. At one time Elias Day, a makeup artist, was behind the scenes laying out his wigs, beards, etc., when a committeeman came back to see him. After the usual greetings the committeeman
said:

"I hope to goodness you're better'n the last number on our course was!"

"Who was it?" asked Mr. Day.

"Dr. Russell Conwell of Philadelphia."

"Didn't you like him?" asked Day in a daze.

"Rotten!" said the committeeman.

"Who came before that?"

"Leland T. Powers of Boston."

"Well, you liked him, of course."

"Terrible rotten!"

"And what did you have before that?" asked Day, now prepared for anything.

"Schumann-Heink and her company."

"Did you hear her?"

"Ever'body a-klekin." Said she was poorer'n home talent."

"Well," said Day, the settledness of despair in his tone, "you'll like me!"

But perhaps the best instance of perfect adaptation on the spur of the moment is found in an anecdote Bob Burdette vouches for as having been the experience of his illustrious contemporary, Bill Nye.

Nye and Burdette were being starred that year by Major Pond. They were doing the Canadian provinces and on the night of the special episode were
at Victoria, British Columbia. Burdette was doing heavy dramatic work as the best possible foil for Nye's subtle and side racking humor. But in the audience were several men who bad that evening tasted too frequently of the flowing bowl. These would occasionally break forth with remarks that were models of untimeliness.
Finally, when Burdette was in the midst of his most fascinating and tragic reading and the audience was holding its breath, one whose breath was too strong to be held burst out into a maudlin snatch of song which utterly sidetracked and discouraged the lecturer. The speaker stopped, lost and confused beyond recall.

But just as the silence was beginning to be felt Nye stepped blandly
and quickly from behind the scenes, laid his hand on his companion's arm
and gazed thoughtfully over the house.
Then, in a mild but distinct voice, he asked:

"Is Dr. Leslie E. Keeley in the room?"

Even the fact that it was a near British audience could not hide the consummate wit of the remark, and the evening was saved and made a triumph instead of ignominious defeat for the speakers.--Strickland W. Gillian in St. Louis Republic.

What is celebrity? The advantage of being known to people who don't

A Closed Discussion.

They had argued long and furiously over the question, "Can a man marry his widow's niece?" and the highly talented lawyer in the corner had waxed eloquent over the marriage laws of every state in the Union, every country in the world, civilized and uncivilized, and had cited the affinity tables of every church and even the legislation of Lycurgus down to that of Brigham Young, when a young man quietly announced his intense desire to be informed where the deuce a man was when his wife was a widow? Then the discussion closed down and fourteen excited controversialists ordered iced water.—New York Times.

A Fair Sized Trout.

The gentleman was strolling across a large estate when he came upon a man fishing. "What sort of fish do you catch here?" he said.

"Mostly trout," replied the man. "How many have you caught?" "About ten or twelve, sir."

"What is about the heaviest you have caught?" continued the gentleman.

Divides the Waters.

Situated exactly at the highest point of the divide of the Rocky mountains, on the Crow's Nest division of the Canadian Pacific railway, in British Columbia, is a hotel. When it rains in the mountains the water which falls on the eastern slope of the hotel roof trickles away to join a tiny rivulet, which in due time mingles its waters with the Atlantic. The water falling just beyond the ridgepole, on the other side of the roof, flows westerly and ultimately into the Pacific.

THEATRICAL COMBINE PLANS TO BUILD THEATRES IN THE VALLEY

$30,000 To Be Expended
Here in Erecting New Structure—Monessen Opera House to be Leased

For the purpose of leasing or building and operating a number of theatres in Pittsburgh and towns along the Monongahela valley a corporation to be known as the National Theatres Corporation has been formed and a charter has been asked for in this State. The object of the company is to operate high-class theatres in Pittsburgh, Charleroi, Monongahela, and Monessen. All theatres to be built or purchased are to be large enough to enable them to handle without inconvenience first-class road productions.

The capitalization will be $50,000 divided into shares of $10 each. Edwin DeLonge and Co. of Chicago, Ill., dealers in bonds, is backing the project and their plan is to issue bonds for the purchase or erection of the proposed string of theatres.

It is a part of the plan to build a new theatre at Charleroi, costing $30,000, and to take the best operating theatre in Monessen, $35,000 to be devoted to this purpose. A new play house is also projected at Monongahela, similar to that planned for Charleroi, but costing $35,000.

In the "Investors' News," published by Edwin DeLonge and Co., the following statement is made relative to the proposition. "The offices and directors are men with honest reputations and who are well thought of in their home communities. The management will be left to able and experienced people. We hope to secure the services of the present successful manager of the theatre at Monessen. Enough money to insure the successful completion of the present plans has been subscribed according to present arrangements."

The National Theatres Corporation is now arranging for the opening of a Pittsburgh office, from which the local business will be handled. Details about the local proposed playhouse are wanting, but it is understood it will be placed in a good location. The capitalization may be increased later.

HOW THE VOTE WENT IN LAWRENCE COUNTY

The official vote of Lawrence county gives Tener 2,865, Grim 243 Berry 9,927. For Congress in the Twenty-fourth Congressional district, Mathews, Republican, who is elected received 3,467 votes and Wilson, Democrat, 2,348 in Lawrence county.

LATEST COUNT SHOWS ANDERSON TO BE THE LOSER BY 91 VOTES

After conceding the election of his Democratic-Keystone opponent, J. Carter Judson, A. H. Anderson, Republican candidate for Senator in the Washington-Greene District, had his hopes raised by the announcement that a recount made him a winner by 66 votes. The first count showed Anderson to be defeated by 61 votes. This report was circulated among the latter's friends and was received with much rejoicing. It was an unofficial recount that caused the statement to be circulated that Anderson had been finally elected, as it was believed that several errors discovered made him the winner. The official count of both counties was in progress, and when this was completed the returns showed that Judson was a winner by 91 votes.

ALUMNI ASSOCIATION HOLDS ANNUAL BANQUET

Class of 1910 Welcomed Into Fold by President of Association

The Douglas College Alumni Association held their third annual alumni banquet last night at the Monier Hotel. The affair was one of the most pleasing events of the kind ever held by the association and was attended by a representative number from Charleroi and other towns all along the valley.

In connection with the banquet a program of literary and musical numbers was rendered by members of the association and the faculty. An address of welcome to the class of 1910 was given by the president of the association, J. Russell Carroll, of McKeesport. Miss May Barth rendered a piano solo for which she was repeatedly encored and was followed by Miss Minnie Mears of Monongahela who gave a reading. President Warren T. Douglas of the college gave a talk and Miss Mildred Stout of Elrama followed with a recitation. M. Adams, the superintendent of the Charleroi school spoke of school experiences after which Miss Eva Louttit of Riverview read a prophecy for the class of 1910 and set ideals which if even near approached will make the class a memorable one. At the banquet table Mr. Adams was toastmaster and several responded to toasts.

Reception for Couple
Mrs. C. B. Copeland and daughter Miss Jessie were in Belle Vernon last night attending a reception given in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Charles McKean, a recently wedded couple at their new home. The affair was arranged by the Belle Vernon friends of Mr. and Mrs. McKean and a large number were present.

NO TRACE OF STOLEN HORSE

No trace has been found of either the horse and buggy missing from Róley's livery barn here or M. C. Greenlee, the young man who on Sunday disappeared with the equipment. The search for both is being continued and today Joseph Róley of Belle Vernon in Allegheny county looking up a clue. It is thought possible that Greenlee may have sold the horse and buggy and skipped the country.

OFFICIALS OF SCHOOL WILL MEET

The first annual conferences of colleges secondary, and high schools of Western Pennsylvania will be held Thursday and Friday, December 2 and 3, at the University of Pittsburgh, Grant Boulevard, Pittsburgh, under the auspices of that institution. Its purpose will be the fostering of increased interest in higher education among the secondary and high schools and for bringing about a closer relationship between the two great branches of our educational system. Afternoon and evening sessions will be held on the two days of the gathering and topics of general interest in the field of education discussed.

Invitations have been sent to ten colleges, five Normal schools, and all the high schools west of the Allegheny mountains to have representatives at the conference and prominent educators from 21 counties of the Keystone State are expected to attend. Included in the proposed list of speakers are the names to Presidents Moffitt of W. and J. college; Crawford of Allegheny college and Russell of Westminster college.

SUCCUMBS AFTER MUCH SUFFERING

Mrs. Helen O'Donnell, 45 years old, after extended sufferings, died at her home, 928 McKean avenue, last evening at 6:10 o'clock. The funeral will be held from the late home on Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock and interment will be in the Monongahela cemetery. Two daughters, Misses Grace and Margaret, and one son, William, survive. Mrs. O'Donnell was the widow of the late William O'Donnell who died in 1906. One son John died in 1908.

TENER'S PLURALITY OVER BERRY AT THE LOWEST IS 33,000

The plurality with which John K. Tener, Republican, beat William H. Berry, the Keystone candidate for Governor, will be at least 33,700. It was increased to this figure by other official and unofficial returns that came in yesterday, allowing for the reduction which missing Chester and Wayne counties are expected to cause. Complete returns from 65 out of 67 the counties gave Tener a plurality of 36,701. Chester and Wayne counties will reduce that by 2,000 to 3,000. Deducting the larger 8,000 from the 36,701. Tener's plurality is found to be 33,701. This is the total vote, with the two counties missing: Tener, 405,861; Berry, 369,160; Grim, 121,187; Larkin, 11,201; Slattery, 22,252.

The Tener plurality in Allegheny county was increased by additional official returns that came in. These returns show that Tener received, with only a few scattering districts to hear from 47,641 votes, Berry receiving 38,435, giving Tener a plurality of 9,206.

MADE SERIOUS MISTAKES

Energy Directed in Wrong Direction to Bring About the Most Desired Results Politically

After the smoke and fire of the campaign and election have cleared away, some interesting facts and incidents are beginning to filter out. One of these is that a deep laid plot had been hatched among the organizers of the Keystone party by which the political control was to have been taken over by the bosses and would-be politicians, while the reformers were to get the glory, in case the Keystone party was victorious. By taking advantage of the political unrest and general insurgency of the people, and by catering to the disaffected and fanning the flames of discontent wherever possible, it was believed that the psychological moment was on hand for the success of the movement. But for some serious mistakes and short sightedness on the part of the politicians behind the movement, the plans might have carried out.

One of the most serious of these mistakes, perhaps, was the venomous slanderous attacks upon the personal character and integrity of John K. Tener, the Republican candidate for Governor. This detracted public attention from the spirit of insurgency, which was really the strongest issue the opposition to the Republican party had, and which caused such sweeping Democratic victories elsewhere throughout the country. This was the real cause of the Democratic landslide, but its effects were mitigated in Pennsylvania by the scandalous and unjust attacks upon Mr. Tener, which the opposition pushed to the front instead of fanning the flames of insurgency.

Another serious handicap to the success of the Keystone movement was the activity of E. F. Acheson. The fact that both he and Mr. Tener were from the same county, and that Mr. Acheson's motives were inspired by revenge and personal animus instead of reform, together with the opposition he aroused against himself and his movement in Charleroi, completely offset any benefit from his efforts. In his eagerness to pay off some personal political debts—notably against assemblyman Chas. A. Bentley, and the Congressional and Senatorial candidates, in order to get back at

Word was received by Negley Anderson at Monongahela yesterday of the death of Charles Clonar, a former Monongahelian, at Philadelphia. He has been absent for some time, his family not having heard from him for some weeks. The body has been sent for and will likely arrive today.

GOOD ORCHESTRAS ENGAGED TO APPEAR

No announcement made to the music lovers of Pittsburgh and surrounding towns in recent years has been more favorable received, or met with such hearty co-operation from the general public as the forthcoming series of orchestral concerts under the auspices and management of the Pittsburgh Orchestra Association, whose aim it is to complete the necessary endowment fund by mid-winter for the founding of a great, permanent orchestra comparable to the best of American orchestras. To bridge over the interim and enable the public to decide for itself the kind of orchestra and conductor it wants, the Association is presenting a series of Four Visiting Orchestra Concerts, comprising the greatest orchestras in the country, each with a personnel of eighty or more players.

The four appearances of these world-famous orchestras will be at the new Soldiers' Memorial Hall, Pittsburgh. The first will be given by the New York Philharmonic Orchestra, Gustav Mahler, conductor on Monday evening, December 5th; the second by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Max Fiedler, conductor, on January 8th; the third and fourth by the Thomas Orchestra of Chicago, Frederick Stock, conductor, on February 21 and March 27th. These concerts will surpass in importance and educational value any single orchestra offering ever before presented in Pittsburgh, and at the popular schedule price of season tickets, ranging from $7.50 to as low as $2.50 for the entire series, it is reasonably sure that the capacity of the Hall will be taxed by season subscribers alone making it improbable that any seats will be left for any single concert. Season ticket buyer have the advantage of choice of location for the four concerts, and a saving in price. Prospectus and all information will be given on application at the Orchestra Association Offices 15, 16, 17 Farmers Bank Building, Pittsburgh. Orders received by mail given careful attention.

Statement Filed by Miss Matheny in Case.

One of Six Suits Instituted as Result of Speers Tragedy.

The statement of claim has been filed in the suit of Miss Blanche Matheny, of McKeesport by her father and next friend, George Matheny and George Matheny in his own right against the Pittsburgh Railways Co. The claim is for $50,000 damages for personal injuries.

This is one of six suits that have been instituted against the railways company as a result of the accident at the Beechwood crossing in Speers borough on June 26, 1910. It was in this accident that W. H. Hamilton, of Roscoe, and his son, Leroy Hamilton, were killed and other members of the family so seriously injured.

Miss Matheny was a guest of the Hamiltons and was with them in the auto when struck by the car. She says that she has been permanently injured and deprived of the ability to again secure the large earnings that she did before the accident. In the accident she had an arm crushed, the bone broken and splintered and that she was otherwise cut and bruised. The father, George Matheny, avers he has expended large sums for medical services for his daughter and will be deprived of her earnings for a long time and will be put to great expense in the future in providing medical aid and other care.

Plus Was Lacking

The statement that the deposed and
the State were inspired solely by the
offered rather than by motives of
reform, bears the earmarks of truth.
Founded almost upon a forlorn hope
at the start, the only issue then upon
which to base a hope was the political
insurgency of the people and the spirit of social unrest and discontent. It was thought to be a psychological moment,
but just to what extent, was of
course, largely a matter of conjecture.
Instead of making their campaign
opposition to the Republican party
elsewhere throughout the country,
the Keystone backers became too im-
patient for apparent results and
sought to manufacture issues themselves instead of letting the people
lowest depth of degradation in the
assassination of personal character,
the campaign managers of the Keystone party obscured the real issue,
and aroused an opposition that otherwise would not have been so active.
It was a fatal mistake, and one that
former Senator Flinn never would
have made had he been in command instead of Acheson and Van Valkenberg.
Flinn wisely kept in the background
and played his cards so that he could
hedge when he saw the incompetency
of the active leaders. These never
possessed the real elements of leadership, and this lack of "plus," as
the battle at the psychological
moment, which will hardly occur to
them again.

Still Slandering

The Acheson newspapers still continue to insult the people of Charleroi
by alleging glaring and flagrant
frauds at the elections here Tuesday.
They tacitly urge Wilson, the Democratic Keystone candidate for Congress, to contest the seat of Charles Matthews, who was elected to Congress on the Republican ticket in the Twenty-fourth districts. Frauds in Charleroi and Donora, they claim,
would be sufficient to unseat Mr.
Matthews.

leaders at the county seat had overseers appointed for the three Char-
the Keystone watchers were instructed
to challenge every voter possible,
and this was carried to extremes in
at least one precinct. No one interfered with the Keystone or other
watchers, and yet with all this the Tener vote overwhelmed the Key-
practices the new nationalism in getting the vote out. Instead of relying on heelsers, as Mr. Acheson
always did, dozens of citizens inter-
of the professional ward workers.
There is no patent on this method.
If good Republicans had worked it

ELECTRIC SPARKS

President Taft said he was not
surprised at the results of election
over the county. It's hard to surprise a fellow of his calm demeanor.

Where is the imbecile now who
says that the straw vote is a true indicator of sentiment?

How does Acheson fancy being to blame for Tener's election as Governor? Yet such is partly the fact.

Everybody seems to have a cold.

The New York World says "Hearst
and Roosevelt—they were united in
divided."

Senator Bradley of Kentucky somewhat resembles Governor-Elect J. K.
Tener. Senator Bradley should be congratulated.

She seldom conned her Shakespeare

he takes his first ride in an airship.

should not be tampered with by the

PETTY METHODS WERE TO BLAME

United States Senator George F.
Oliver, Mr. Acheson overstepped the grounds of prudence and missed the
main chance.

The refusal of Berry to withdraw
with Grim in favor of a fusion candidate at the last moment, when such
a move seemed to assure positive
victory, is now apparent. It would have decidedly interfered with preconceived plans. A new candidate, pre-
family the old politicians who had
engineered the Keystone ideal. It is stated that Acheson was to have been appointed Secretary of the Commonwealth in case Berry was elected Governor. This position would have given him great power and opportunities for dictating and influencing
legislation, to control political patronage and to pay off old political debts
of gratitude galore. It was a glittering opportunity which promised success, and when it is shown that it might have been successful but for
bad management, the reflection must
be gall and wormwood to the promoters
of the scheme.

Flinn of Pittsburgh and Van Valken-
berg of Philadelphia were to have
also benefitted by the deal, it is
the United States Senatorship, while
and political prestige in the State as
leader to depose Senator Penrose. It was a well laid plot, but the narrow-
mindedness of the leaders caused them
to descend to petty methods for personal revenge, and the main chance was per-

here last night to attend the Douglas College alumni banquet and was a guest of Miss Margaret Miller.

A LEGAL DILEMMA

Tangle of Red Tape in an English Extradition Case.

GETTING AROUND THE LAW.

Police Inspector Kept a Notorious
Criminal in Custody When in Reality
He Was as Free as the Air.

tradited to England from a foreign
home depends very much on the detective who has him in charge and
others.

For instance, in the case of Jabez Balfour, who was taken to England all
the way from Buenos Aires, there
was a strong suspicion—probably ill-
founded—that he contemplated committing suicide. Consequently Inspector Frost, who had him in charge, de-
possibly avoid.

The regulations do not permit of an
on board ship once the vessel has left
port, and he must be allowed one
hour's exercise on deck each day.
These indulgences, if indulgences they
may be called, were therefore not
withheld from Balfour.

But he got few others. For twenty-
three hours out of every twenty-four he was imprisoned in a locked cabin. He was not permitted even to enter the public dining room, his meals being
brought to him by Mr. Frost himself
after the rest of the passengers had
fed. He was, besides, constantly watched and was subjected to a most
rigorous search immediately on coming aboard.

His only relaxation was an occasional game of chess with some of the passengers, who kindly came to his
cabin to play with him by permission
and in the presence of his keeper.
This sea imprisonment lasted exactly
one month and a day, and Balfour
afterward declared that it was the
most trying experience of a captivity
that was destined to continue for nearly twelve years.

One of the longest and in its later
stages one of the pleasantest voyages
ever undertaken by an unconvicted
criminal was that which Charles Hy-
ton Davidson, the notorious forger,
made some years back in the custody
of Chief Inspector Murray of the Canadian department of justice.

Mexico and secured his extradition to Canada. But then his difficulties be-
gan. He could not bring his prisoner to Canada by the direct route through
the United States, for immediately Davidson set foot in that country he could have demanded to be released.
There was therefore nothing for it but
to convey him by way of Jamaica and
Atlantic to Quebec.

On the voyage Murray kept Davidson under close observation, although
allowing him considerably more freedom than Frost allowed Balfour.
When, however, he had got safely as
and astonished at the likelihood of his

prisoner extradited from a foreign country to a British colony could not
be kept in custody in England for longer than twenty-four hours, nor
could he be taken as a prisoner on board a British ship sailing from a British port.

Here was a dilemma. Davidson was free as air—had he only known it.
But Murray was equal to the occasion.
"Look here, Davidson," he said, "I've
stage of the journey to complete. If I allow you to travel alone with me as an ordinary first class passenger
will you give me your word to play

To this proposition Davidson, knowing nothing of the real state of affairs,
was naturally quite ready to agree.
And so it came to pass that one of the most notorious criminals Canada has
ever known came home in state; free,
yet not free, a voluntary prisoner, and
Weekly.

Tactful Truth.
"I appeal to Mr. Verity, whose truthfulness nobody doubts," said the outraged hostess, with a glitter in her eye. "Mr. Verity, do you think I supply my boarders with bad butter?"

The others looked eager attention to see how Mr. Verity would get out of it.

"Madam," he answered, with a bow,
"the truth on which you compliment
ter is one of your strong points."

DOCTOR ADVISED OPERATION

Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Galena, Kans.—"A year ago last March I fell, and a few days after
there was soreness in my right side.
In a short time a bunch came and it
bothered me so much at night I could not sleep. It kept
growing larger and
by fall it was as
large as a hen's egg.
I could not go to
bed without a hot
water bottle applied
to that side. I had one of the best doctors in Kansas and
he told my husband
that I would have to be operated on as it
was something like
a tumor caused by a rupture. I wrote to you for advice and you told me not
to get discouraged but to take Lydia
E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.
I did take it and soon the lump in my
side broke and passed away."—Mrs.

remedy for curing the worst forms of
female ills, including displacements,
inflammation, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, and nervous prostration. It costs
but a trifle to try it, and the result
has been worth millions to many
suffering women.

If you want special advice write
for it to Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., free and always helpful.

THE PRESENT INSTANT.

Science Defines It as the Hundredth
Part of a Second.

A congress of European astronomers
decided that the present time—that is,
the present moment at any particular
instant—consists of the hundredth part of a second. This has been settled on because these men of science have thought that it represented the thinnest fraction of time which could be appreciated by the human brain. Yet the thinnest part of a second is actually
used in physical science, especially in certain important uses of electricity.

official present moment flashes from the future to the past in the hundredth part of a second. This cannot seem so remarkable when it is recalled
men runners are officially calculated in fractions as small as one-fifth of a second.

But in astronomy it is needed to
have the hundredth part of a second,
for in that moment light can travel
2,000 miles. So time, which is, after all,
only a figure of speech and is a mystery that no human brain can understand or fathom, must be considered
relatively to one's sensations. The time to pull an aching tooth is really
much longer to the sufferer than a whole night spent in sound sleep. It is more of the person's actual life. It demands more food to stand the nervous
rest.

Time, then, for all men is relative to
their personal sensations. Yet time is real enough. It takes actual time for starlight to travel, in some cases thousands of years. It takes time for sound
to travel and time for the electric wave
to work actual results over long distances.

So that time is not only theoretical;
it is as real as coal and wood. Yet this reality stretches over a human lifetime back to ages before the existence
of ordinary human work the second is small enough to use as a standard of
value, but scientific men have progressed so far in knowledge that the second is too long a period for them to consider as the scientific instant.
Therefore they have chosen the hundredth of a second as the standard for
the length of time that they will con-
instant.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Spilled His Act.
A musical artist announced to his friends that he had a feature for his
act that was calculated to make the whole profession sit up and take notice. Several days later he was asked to divulge his plans.

"Oh, that's all off," was the answer.
"Well, if it was such a wonderful thing what was it?" was the general inquiry.

"I had planned to have a real skeleton," the musical man replied, "with
music on it like a xylophone."

"Great! Why aren't you going to do it?"

The musician heaved a sigh of disappointment.

"I tried it," he answered, "but somebody stole me the skeleton of a fish-kilb

MENTAL DISCORD.

An Uncompromising Enemy to Happiness and to Health.

It is a law that every state of mind,
whether good or bad, affects every cell
in the system and is outpictured in the body, says Orison Swett Marden in Success Magazine. We are thus the arbiters of our fate through our
thoughts, emotions and passions.

The time will come when we shall
know how to refresh ourselves by
mental chemistry—that is, by holding
in our minds the antidotes of the things that have wearied us or vexed
us, by holding the mental attitude
which will neutralize the thought enemies that have thrown our bodies into
confusion.

There is nothing so deadly to happiness as mental discord. It paralyzes
the thinking ability and destroys the power of concentration and effectiveness.

All diseases and sickness of whatever kind are the outpicturing of some
form of discord. If the mind is kept
as happy as possible it is difficult for discord to get a foothold in the body.
A happy mind is the best possible
discord destroyer.

For centuries man's happiness was
looked upon by many earnest, thinking people as a condition largely beyond his control. They seemed to think that it depended mostly upon
the temperament one happened to develop and that there were other things
of so much more importance that we should not consider it too seriously or take precious time to cultivate it directly.

We are beginning to find, however,
that even as an economical investment it pays immensely to make a
business of being happy and being
just as good to ourselves as possible, although not in a selfish way. We could not be good to ourselves in the

POET OF MANY VERSES.

An Anecdote of Pellegriin, an Eighteenth Century Bard.

The impetuous French poets of the
middle eighteenth century used to con-
sort at the cafes, where sometimes they would pick up customers. One of the worst and at the same time the most facile of the bards was a
told in "An Eighteenth Century Marquise." One day a newcomer entered
the cafe and began complaining that he was going to be married and had
no epithalamium for his wedding. Pel-legriin hastened to the rescue of his own compositions. A deal was soon arranged and the price agreed upon was

Berry-T Wendell's Pun.

When Professor Wendell of Harvard
entered upon his Sabbatical year he remained in Cambridge some weeks
after his leave of absence began and
persisted in taking part in the departmental meeting. The head of the department protested.

"Sir," said he, "you are officially absent. You are now est."

"Oh, very well," replied Professor

A Matter of Choice.

An old dandy servant, devoted to General Jackson, waited on him in the general's last hours. Right after the general's death a preacher asked Ras-
heaven.

"I don't know, boss, 'till he go to sure, but he can't be 'wants to," replied the dandy.—Independent.

The Gullible Public.
Two boulevardiers of Paris tell how they proved the gullibility of the public. They bet a friend 1,000 francs that by inserting three advertisements of three lines each in papers in the course of a week they would receive 500 francs without giving any explanation or making any promise to the senders.
On a Saturday the following advertisement appeared:
"Intelligent persons will send 5 francs to such an address."
On the Wednesday the insertion ran: "Last possible day is Sunday. Send your 5 francs then, or refusal."
The third on the following Saturday was:
"All 5 francs posted after tomorrow will be inexorably refused."
By the Sunday morning seventy-seven postal orders for 4 shillings each had come in, and the next morning eighty-two more arrived. The gullible public had sent in not 500 francs, but 795 francs in a week. Having proved their point and won their bet, the two boulevardiers naturally returned the postal orders to the ingenious senders.

English of Long Ago.
The King's English has changed as kings have come and gone, says the St. James' Gazette. Here is a passage from the record of a crowning of long ago: "The Cardinal, as Archbishop of Caunterbure, showing the king to the people at the hij parties of the said pulpit, shall say in this wise. 'Sirs, I here present Henry (true) and rightful, and undoubted heir to the lawes of God and man to the coroune and roiall dignite of England, with all things thereunto annexed and apperteyning, electe, chosen and required by all three estats of the same land to tak upon him the said coroune and roiall dignite, whereupon ye shall understand that the daie is prefixed and appointed by all the piers of this land for the consecration, enveccion and coronacion of the said most excellent Prince Henry; will ye, sirs, at this tyme geve your willes and essentes to the same consecration, enveccion and coronacion? Whereupon the peple shall saie, with a greate voice, 'Ye, Ye. So be hit, King Henry! King Henry!'"

Weighing the Mayor.
A mayor, particularly an English mayor, is traditionally a man of weight and substance, but there is only one municipality that insists that his honor get on the public scales and prove it. Of the thousands of quaint and curious customs surviving in "the old country," this is perhaps one of the most odd. The mayor of High Wycombe has to be weighed on Nov. 9 of each year, inauguration day, and this custom has been observed for about six centuries. The mayor elect walks at the head of a procession consisting of the councillors, the beadle and the mace bearer. He is clad in cocked hat, silk stockings, blue coat and knee breeches. Upon reaching the town hall the mayor is placed upon the scales by the head constable, and a record of his avoirdupois is solemnly made in a book kept for this purpose.—Harper's Weekly.

The Brain is Very Adaptable.
Each vocation makes a different call upon the brain and develops faculties and qualities peculiar to itself, so that as the various professions, trades and specialties multiply the brain takes on new adaptive qualities, thus giving greater variety and strength to civilization as a mass, says Orison Sweet Marden in Success Magazine.

When the world was young the brain of man was very primitive, because the demand upon it was largely for self protection and the acquisition of food, which called only for the development of its lower, its animal part. As civilization advanced, however, there was a higher call upon the brain and a more varied development until today, in the highest civilization, it has become exceedingly complex.

Only Two Kinds.
Little Lawrence's grandfather was very ill, and a trained nurse had been employed to care for him. When he became convalescent a young woman who had studied in a hospital for a short time was secured in her place. A sympathetic neighbor meeting Lawrence, the following conversation took place:
"How is your dear grandpa this morning, Lawrence?"
"He is better."
"Have you the trained nurse still?"
"No; the trained nurse has gone away, and the one we have now is half trained and half wild."—Woman's Home Companion.

Feminine.
"What is Mrs. Green crying for?"
"Mrs. Watson snubbed her in the street car."
"But Mrs. Green doesn't speak to Mrs. Watson anyhow."
"I know, but she's crying because she didn't see Mrs. Watson in time to snub her first."—Detroit Free Press.

Hotel Was Crowded.

THE GIFT OF GAB.

Why Stephenson Thought There Was No Power Equal to It.

When George Stephenson was visiting the seat of Sir Robert Peel at Drayton on one occasion, says the writer of "Famous British Engineers," there happened to be present Dr. Buckland, the scientist, and Sir William Follett, the famous advocate. Stephenson discussed with Dr. Buckland one of his favorite theories as to the formation of coal and, though undoubtedly in the right, was ultimately vanquished by the arguments and oratory of the doctor, who was a better master of tongue fence than himself. Next morning while pondering over his defeat in the solitude of the garden he was accosted by Sir William Follett and confided to that gentleman the story of his failure.

Sir William, acquainted with the details of the matter in dispute, agreed to take up the case and soon afterward attacked Dr. Buckland on the subject. A long discussion ensued, in which the man of law completely silenced the man of science, who was at last compelled to own himself vanquished. Sir Robert Peel, highly amused at this example of "tit for tat," then turned to the inventor and inquired, with a laugh:

"And what do you say on this matter, Mr. Stephenson?"

"Why," he replied, "I will only say this—that of all the powers above and under the earth there seems to me no power equal to the gift of the gab."

QUAINT EPITAPHS.

Gems From Ancient Graveyards In Suffolk, England.

The Suffolk (England) Institute of Archaeology has been collecting epitaphs from the ancient graveyards throughout the shire, and several of the most curious are here printed. One shows traces of a pessimistic philosophy surprising when we consider the strong orthodoxy of the day when the epitaph was written:

Beneath this stone lies Catherine Gray. Changed to a lifeless lump of clay. By earth and clay she got her pelf, And now she's turned to clay herself. Who knows but in the course of years In some tall pitcher or brown pan She in her shop may stand again.

Another from Suffolk reads as follows:

Here lies Robert Wallis, The King of Good Fellows, Clerk of All Hallows And maker of bellows. These which follow could scarcely be lines chosen by the reverend occupant of the tomb himself, a clergyman named Chest:

Here I lie at rest, I do protest, One Chest within another. The chest of wood was very good. Who says so of the other? And, to conclude, here is a bit of philosophy that cannot be improved by any of the great thinkers of all time:

Here I lie outside the chance door: Here I lie because I'm poor. The further in the more they pay. But here I lie as warm as they.

A Wooden Head. Certain members of the house party were describing the accidents that had happened to them during their various careers. Adventures by land, fire and field had not been without number, and Dr. Sappinby, senior for fame, thought it was his turn.

"If you know," he said, "I had a very painful experience once. I ran a coal foundry and summer quite half an inch long with my three half-inch fingers."

"Really, Mr. de Sappinby," said a member of the party. "How did you do it?"

"Well," he said, "it happened like this. As he spoke he unconsciously raised his hand and scratched his forehead."

Carpets and Rugs.

Carpets and rugs were originally employed by oriental nations for sitting, reclining and kneeling purposes during devotion. When introduced among the western peoples they were for a long time used for purely ornamental purposes, covers for tables or couches and for laying before altars or chairs of state upon great occasions. Carpets were brought to Europe by the Moors, but it was well into the eighteenth century before they came into anything like general use.

Every Little Movement.

"Goodness knows," answered the cobbler, with a careless laugh. "I got 'em out of a cupboard of every cobbler's in the land."—Philadelphia Bulletin.

Matthews.

Truly Answered.

Boats trading in the Medway in former years rejoiced in rather curious names, and the following was only one of the many amusing incidents resulting from this:

A boat named What's That to You? passing a lock at night-time was hailed as usual by the coast guard-man.

"Captain X."

"And what are you laden with?"

"Coals."

"Where bound for?"

"Chatham."

"Ship's name?"

"What's That to You?"

"I asked you the name of the ship."

"What's That to You?"

"You shall be reported for your insolence!" roared the coast guard-man. Again he put the question, and, receiving the same reply, the boat was commended to remain where she was.

In the morning two boats were seen keeping guard. The officials, as they boarded the vessel with full authority to seize the offenders, observed for the first time the name painted in large letters. Amid the laughter and jeers of the crew of the What's That to You? they pulled moodily away.—London Telegraph.

Political Passions of 1844.

There were elements of picturesqueness and drama in the politics of the before the war time which are lacking nowadays. Marion Harland tells in her autobiography of a Whig rally which makes the political meetings of today seem tame, cut and dried affairs.

It was in 1844, the year of Clay's defeat, and feeling ran high. At that particular time John Tyler was perhaps the most unpopular man in the Union. In the progress of his review of national affairs the orator at last came to the hated name. Instantly uprose the majestic figure of Captain Cook, the local eccentric, clad in the scarlet English hunting coat he invariably wore. "The Lord have mercy upon the nation!" he cried, his voice solemn with wrath and sonorous with the mint juleps for which the Bell was noted. "Fellow citizens, I always cry to high heaven for mercy upon this country when John Tyler's name is mentioned. Amen and amen!"

Distilled Gold.

The investigations of a French chemist show that gold in the electric furnace boils freely at a temperature of 2,400 degrees C. In two or three minutes it is said, from 100 to 150 grams of gold pass into the state of vapor. In condensing upon a cold body this golden vapor forms illiform masses and cubic crystals. At its temperature of ebullition gold dissolves a little carbon, which at the time of resolidification is deposited in the form of graphite. In an alloy of gold and copper, copper distills first. In an alloy of gold and tin, the tin distills more abundantly than the gold, and when a large quantity of these mixed vapors is taken the tin burns on contact with the oxygen of the air, forming oxide of tin, colored purple by a fine dust of condensed gold. This is one method of preparing the color known as "purple of Cassius."—Harper's Weekly.

Arctic Rock Weed.

Drifting down from Alaska comes the greatest of all sea plants, the arctic rock weed, that grows in shape like a huge ship's tanner and sometimes with branches 500 feet long. There are no signs of leaves, but at intervals of a fathom or so a knob, for all the world like the buoy on a drift net, grows around the stem, aiding, as does the buoy, in keeping the plant afloat and creating the impression that some nets have gone astray.—New York World.

Method In Her Breakage.

"Augusta is an awfully bright girl, isn't she?"

"Yes, indeed. When she is reading a novel on the front porch her mother never thinks of asking her to wash the dishes."

"Why not?"

"She's sure to break so many of them."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Trouble Ahead.

Young Husband (to wife)—Didn't I telegraph to you not to bring your mother with you?

Young Wife—I know. That's what she wants to see you about. She read the telegram.

Lived In a Good Neighborhood.

Were Not on the Bills.

BILL NYE'S TACTFUL QUERY.

It Saved an Embarrassing Situation
and Turned a Painful Silence Into a
That Made an Audience Roar.

The funniest humor is the unintentional kind. The best comedy is that which has never been rehearsed or premeditated, but springs to life in close straits when everything of success for the platform performer depends on his holding the spot light of
his audience's attention through a crucial strain caused by unexpected diversion.

Some of the involuntary humor of
the platform is worth remembering
and repeating. For instance:

Once upon a time a lecturer reached the platform and found the audience per, shave and dress between then and the usual scheduled starting time.
$15. Accordingly he dressed with more haste than he had intended, and two top buttons of his trousers failed to receive proper attention. This showed plainly in the glare of the footlights,
and a bit of his dress shirt protruded
noticeably. The audience had a hard time being courteous and reconciling
the ridiculousness of the speaker's appearance with the serious dignity and beauty of his lecture. Still, all would have been well but for the fact that at the close of the address and while the
speaker still sat on the platform in his unconscious disfigure the platform manager rose and announced impres-
sively:

"The next number on this splendid
course will be given two weeks from tonight by Dr. Robert McIntyre, who will deliver his celebrated lecture
'Buttoned Up People.'"

The audience shrieked, and to this
day, through the tender hearted forbearance of those people, that lecturer
does not know why the announcement
of his confrere's beautiful word picture lecture created just that kind of enthusiasm.

At one time Dr. Thomas E. Green
was submitted to the long introduction
agony. He stood it as patiently as
when the introducer ceased and bowed
out the paid speaker of the evening
Dr. Green walked forward and said in his most ministerial tone:

"I am going to add a phrase to the
litany, making it read as follows:
'From our traders and our introducers good Lord deliver us.'"

Sometimes a town committee is can-
tankerous and takes on a degree of choiciness never dreamed of or aspired to by a city committee. At one time Elias Day, a makeup artist, was
behind the scenes laying out his wigs, beards, etc., when a committeeman
came back to see him. After the usual greetings the committeeman
said:

"I hope to goodness you're better'n the last number on our course was!"

"Who was it?" asked Mr. Day.

"Dr. Russell Conwell of Philadelphia."

"Didn't you like him?" asked Day in
a daze.

"Totten!" said the committeeman.

"Leland T. Powers of Boston."

"Well, you liked him, of course."

"Terrible rotten!"

"And what did you have before that?" asked Day, now prepared for anything.

"Schumann-Heink and her company."

"Did you hear her?"

"Everybody a-kickin'." Said she was poorer'n home talent."

"Well," said Day, the settledness of
despair in his tone, "you'll like me!"

But perhaps the best instance of perfect adaptation on the spur of the moment is found in an anecdote Bob Burdette touched for as having been the experience of his illustrious contemporary, Bill Nye.

Nye and Burbank were being starred that year by Major Pond. They were doing the Canadian provinces and on
at Victoria, British Columbia. Burbank was doing heavy dramatic work
as the best possible foil for Nye's subtle and side racking humor. But
in the audience were several men who had that evening tasted too frequently
of the flowing bowl. These would occasional break forth with remarks that were models of untimeliness.

Finally, when Burbank was in the midst of his most fascinating and tragic reading and the audience was holding its breath, one whose breath was
too strong to be held burst out into a maudlin snatch of song which uter-ly sidetracked and discouraged the lecturer. The speaker stopped, lost and
confused beyond recall.

But just as the silence was beginning to be felt Nye stepped blandly
and quickly from behind the scenes,
laid his hand on his companion's arm
and gazed thoughtfully over the house.
Then, in a mild but distinct voice, he
asked:

"Is Dr. Leslie E. Keeley in the house?"

Even the fact that it was a near British audience could not hide the
consummate wit of the remark, and
the evening was saved and made a
triumph instead of ignominious defeat
for the speakers--Strickland W. Gilman in St. Louis Republic.

What is celebrity? The advantage of being known to people who don't

Will Hold Bazaar

The ladies of the Methodist Episcopal church will today and Saturday hold their annual bazaar in the church. There will be booths at which all nature of articles will be sold. Lunch will be served.

A Closed Discussion.

They had argued long and furiously over the question, "Can a man marry his widow's niece?" and the highly talented lawyer in the corner had waxed eloquent over the marriage laws of every state in the Union, every country in the world, civilized and uncivilized, and had cited the affinity tables of every church and even the legislation of Lycurgus down to that of Brigham Young, when a young man quietly announced his intense desire to be informed where the deuce a man was when his wife was a widow?

Then the discussion closed down and fourteen excited controversialists ordered iced water.—New York Times.

A Fair Sized Trout.

"Mostly trout," replied the man.

"How many have you caught?"

"About ten or twelve, sir."

"What is about the heaviest you have caught?" continued the gentleman.

Divides the Waters.

Situated exactly at the highest point of the divide of the Rocky mountains, on the Crow's Nest division of the Canadian Pacific railway, in British Columbia, is a hotel. When it rains in the mountains the water which falls on the eastern slope of the hotel roof trickles away to join a tiny rivulet, which in due time mingles its waters with the Atlantic. The water falling just beyond the ridgepole, on the other side of the roof, flows westerly and ultimately into the Pacific.

Lots of Them.

"There is one thing which has rather puzzled me."

"What is that?"

"When money talks does it always talk cents?"—Baltimore American.

His Argument.

"Dear, I only play poker for fun."

"But you bet, don't you?"

"Well, there wouldn't be any fun without a little betting."—Pittsburg Post.
